Other Computer Skills

1- Research the Web

I can always search the Internet very professionally to solve a problem, get information, or even learn something new... whether it's from educational sites, articles, or through a YouTube lesson. I can rely on online research to create a project without having the experience to create it.

2- Identify Opportunities

I connect with people who share the same passions and interests as me. Maybe we can collaborate on a project together or simply learn from each other.

3- Practice Regularly

Practice is key. I enhance my knowledge, and I'm not afraid to try different tools to expand my experience. As a development, I am now learning a new programming language, Python.

4- Sign Up for Courses

I look for platforms that allow users to grow their knowledge. The most popular ones are Coursera, Udemy, and Codecademy, where I can find many online courses to grow your skills. I can also check out Microsoft's technical courses, or simply browse tutorials on YouTube.
